Houston, we have a Parade Marshal for the Stampede

Homecoming.
Astronaut Chris Hadfield to marshal Stampede Parade in July, calling it a 'great reason to come back to Earth'

In a deal negotiated between space and Earth via Twitter and YouTube, astronaut Chris Hadfield has been confirmed as the Parade Marshal for the Calgary Stampede in July.

"We are thrilled Cmdr. Hadfield will be leading our 2013 Stampede Parade," Stampede president Bob Thompson said Thursday, following a flurry of communications between Calgary and the International Space Station.

Stampede officials initially invited Hadfield to visit the 101st annual event in a Twitter conversation Wednesday.

Hadfield is wrapping up a months-long mission as commander of the International Space Station, and he routinely tweets from the orbiting vessel.

"Calgary in July sounds lovely! Anything worth coming to see that time of year?" he tweeted wryly.

The Stampede replied, "You will just have to come visit to find out. What do you think about sitting in a horse saddle at full gravity?"

Hadfield responded: "Space suit, white hat, cowboy boots — I'll be ready to ride anything that stays below 8km a second."

That prompted Thompson to take things a step further, and post a video on YouTube Thursday, inviting Hadfield to lead the famous Stampede Parade.

"We would be honoured because, you know Chris, you truly are a Canadian icon," Thompson said. "You're a Canadian hero. You've done remarkable things, sharing with so many people your experiences from the International Space Station."

Shortly in the afternoon Mountain Time, Hadfield accepted the invitation.

The Stampede then issued a news release confirming Hadfield's participation.

"The Calgary Stampede is an iconic event; to be asked to lead the Parade is an incredible honour," Hadfield said in that release. "Going from zero gravity to horse-back is going to be a huge adjustment, but I'm up for the challenge."

Hadfield is set to return to Earth on May 13, after launching into orbit last December and taking over command of the ISS in March.

Delay in trial

Birth control a bail condition for woman accused of killing babies

A mother accused of killing two of her newborns and throwing them in the trash has been granted bail during a lengthy delay in her murder trial.

But Justice Peter McIntyre added one key condition in his decision Thursday to release Meredith Borowiec until her trial resumes Nov. 4.

She must use an IUD (intrauterine device) to prevent any further pregnancies while she returns home and lives with her longtime boyfriend.

Borowiec, who has been in custody for the last 18 months, showed no visible reaction as the judge granted her bail.

The 31-year-old is charged with second-degree murder in the deaths of two newborns in 2008 and 2009. She was charged just over a year after a third child was found alive in a Dumpster in October 2010.

She faces a second trial on an attempted murder charge related to the surviving child.

The murder trial was originally scheduled for six weeks, but lengthy arguments ate up the allotted time and forced a six-month adjournment.

In an interview with police, Borowiec said she didn't even look to see whether her first child was a boy or a girl. She admitted to a similar scenario for her second child, whom she birthed into a toilet. She then wrapped the child in a towel and dropped it into the garbage. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Parents divided on how test change affects kids

Goodbye, provincial achievement tests.
New assessments will be issued at start of year

JEREMY NOLAIS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Provincial achievement tests in grades 3, 6 and 9 will soon be a thing of the past in Alberta.

Education Minister Jeff Johnson followed through on a Tory election pledge Thursday, completely revamping student assessment to now utilize computerized tests at the start of the school year as opposed to pen-and-paper tests shortly before summer break.

The thinking is that by conducting the tests in the fall, educators and parents will be able to identify a child's strengths and areas for improvement over the 10 months of classes to come, Johnson said.

"It treats parents as true partners in the education system," he said.

But Calgary parents were split on the move. Even sisters-in-law Kelly Elkadri and Eman Kahlil didn't see eye-to-eye on the plan — both have a son writing achievement tests in the next couple days.

"I worry about putting that much pressure on a kid right after summer break," Elkadri said, adding she fears a poor grade in September could hurt a child's confidence.

"It seems like they're almost setting them up for failure," she added.

Kahlil disagreed.

"To restructure it so you know where the kid is at is better, so you can adapt your style of teaching to their learning," she said. "It's better than trying to teach them and then realizing at the end of the year everything you've done didn't work."

The change in testing is also expected to make it more difficult for organizations like the Fraser Institute to use the results to rank Alberta schools, something the government has long spoken out against.

Teacher support

The Alberta Teachers' Association supported a move away from the tests, which they have long claimed are restrictive to classroom learning and an unfair form of assessment.

- "This is something we have been asking for, I am going to say, for decades," said local president Frank Bruseker. "I think, first of all, it will eliminate stress."

McCall Lake Golf Course men's club member Gerry Baron shows off one of the leaflets he's been handing out to course users and putting under windshields. It references Joni Mitchell's Big Yellow Taxi. Golfers campaign to save McCall Lake course

Approach. City plans to hear from those for and against closing northeast site in June

Golfers have teed up a campaign to save a beloved northeast Calgary course.

Officials announced plans during the grip of a cold February to close the city-owned McCall Lake Golf Course after the 2014 season and repurpose the land for commercial, industrial and recreational use.

Now that the sun is shining and golfers like McCall men's club member Gerry Baron are back on the links, a campaign has been launched to save both the 18-hole main course and nine-hole par-3 offering.

"I know guys that are up at 6 a.m. (to book a tee time) and if you aren't up at six you don't get in ... yet the city is telling us the course is underutilized," Baron said.

The avid golfer has launched an online petition, which has garnered more than 500 signatures over the past few weeks, and began distributing small leaflets to help save McCall.

But while the city has said interest in golf locally is decreasing and McCall is losing more than $200,000 a year, area Ald. Ray Jones said he hasn't made up his mind about whether shutting the course is the best option.

Jones said a meeting is being planned for some time in June and he hopes everyone impacted will turn out to make their viewpoints known.

"Ultimately, it will be city council that decides," he said. "If only four or five people show up, it's going to be hard to justify keeping it open.... I haven't taken a stance on it because I want to hear both sides of the issue."

Jones noted city officials have said the course requires as much as $8 million in maintenance upgrades to stay open.

A blog has also been launched featuring testimonials from golfers and others related to the course. It can be found at savemccall.wordpress.com.

40 jobs lost. National Nursing Week layoffs 'disrespectful': Union

Dozens of Calgary nurses have received layoff notices since Monday, something the union describes as insulting because it comes during National Nursing Week.

"We just think it's the epitome of disrespect," said Jacki Capper, president of the United Nurses of Alberta Local 211.

A total of 21 registered nurses who work in home care and another 19 chronic-disease management nurses received job-elimination notices on Monday and Tuesday, Capper said.

The latter group had been partnered with area Primary Care Networks (PCNs), Capper added, many of which are now advertising similar positions.

"Those positions will now be non-unionized, private positions at the PCNs," she said.

Alberta Health Services spokesperson Bruce Conway said the home-care layoffs were part of AHS' effort to find efficiencies in the wake of provincial budget cuts, and the PCN layoffs are part of the evolution of the networks.

"Previously, when the PCNs were being established, AHS hired and managed the staff that worked at the PCNs, and the PCNs provided the funding for those positions," he said. "Now that the PCNs are established, they are doing their own hiring."

Affected staff will have the opportunity to apply for PCN positions, Conway added, "or apply for other AHS positions as per their union agreement."

ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO

Alberta PCNs

The province describes Primary Care Networks, or PCNs, as "groups of family doctors that work with Alberta Health Services and other health professionals to co-ordinate the delivery of primary health services for their patients." There are 40 PCNs operating in the province, according to Alberta Health.

Family 'heartbroken' after police ID body in river

Sandra Mykytiuk-Evans, 56, was last seen by her family in late December. HANDOUT

Four-month search.
Sandra Mykytiuk-Evans 'had a gift for inspiring others,' daughter says

JEREMY NOLAIS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Family and friends struggled to cope after learning Thursday a body pulled from the Bow River belonged to missing Calgary mother and teacher Sandra Mykytiuk-Evans.

The 56-year-old was last seen Dec. 29 and numerous searches involving family, friends, police and even complete strangers turned up few clues.

Mykytiuk-Evans' body was found by a fisherman in the Bow River near the Inglewood Golf Course on Wednesday afternoon. A medical examiner identified the body and informed the family Thursday afternoon.

Holding hope

Family members had not given up hope in recent weeks of finding Mykytiuk-Evans. Daughter Laura Evans was out putting up posters in the community last weekend.

"We're devastated, we're heartbroken, we're grieving," said daughter Ashley Van Winkle. "We would just like to thank everyone that helped us out.... We are truly grateful for all of the support."

But questions about what happened to Mykytiuk-Evans will likely remain. Police issued a statement Thursday afternoon stating they did not consider her death suspicious and would not be providing any additional information.

As well, Van Winkle said officers had provided little information Thursday about the circumstances surrounding her mother's disappearance.

Bike parking increasing downtown

Calgary Parking Authority. About 280 spots now available

KATIE TURNER
katie.turner@metronews.ca

Cyclists will have more options to securely park their bikes downtown as the Calgary Parking Authority introduces nearly 200 new parking stalls.

For a rate of $10 per month and a $25 key deposit, cyclists will have the option to park their bikes in a caged area in one of six CPA parkades as of May 15, when the parking is expected to be available.

"We have about 191 parking stalls that will be available for public use," said CPA general manager Troy McLeod.

Previously, McLeod said they had about 80 stalls for bikes and a lengthy waiting list.

"There's a significant number (of stalls) that we've added for secure parking because that's what we're getting requests for," he said.

The new bike storage areas will be accessed through an electronic key, and McLeod said the cages are in spots of the parkade that weren't being utilized for vehicle parking previously.

President of Bike Calgary and cycling advocate Brent Clark said this initiative is welcome news, as they've been hearing a demand for secure bike parking for some time.

The city is a gift to me

As I step deeper and deeper into my 30s, I think I'm becoming more comfortable with the idea of staying in Calgary.

After writing this column for more than three years, the moment I've been waiting for has finally happened: I get to write a column on my birthday!

Besides giving me the chance to remind an entire city that Thursday was my birthday, it also gives me a chance to look back at what I've been doing with my life, specifically my life here in Calgary.

When I moved here in 2005, I was only supposed to be here for six months. I'm not sure of the exact moment that I decided that I was probably going to end up staying longer than my rather limited short plan, but that six months turned into eight years, and even after a lot of photo-radar speeding tickets, I don't know if I'll ever leave.

All those years ago, the best part about moving to Calgary was being seemingly always surrounded by Maritimers. We all used to gather at the Trap and Gill, talk about how much we missed Greco Pizza and why more people didn't appreciate the amazing Great Big Sea. But since then the Trap and Gill has closed its doors and many of my friends have moved away. (I'm assuming one has nothing to do with the other.) Much to my chagrin, many of my former drinking buddies have moved back to the Maritimes or to the suburbs, which, if I'm being honest, might as well be the same place.

As our parents always told us it would, as we get older, time seems to go faster. All of a sudden, my apartment doesn't seem to be completely furnished by things from Ikea. I'm not really sure how it happened, but my couch is now from Sears. When I moved here, I didn't even know Sears sold things besides the toys in their Wish Book.

Living here for so long, I do have some regrets. I hate that I waited so long to start going to the Ship and Anchor; same goes for taking advantage of using the city's plentiful bike paths. But mostly I regret betting that the Peace Bridge would never open.

As I step deeper and deeper into my 30s, I think I'm becoming more comfortable with the idea of staying in Calgary. The restaurants are getting better and so is the shopping. Transit is significantly more usable and I think I've finally gotten a hang of these Chinook headaches.

But more than anything, I think I love Calgary because it's now the city I grew up in. Not as a child, but as a grownup. I like myself now way more than when I first moved here and I have Calgarians to thank for that.

I mean, you have to really like yourself to write a whole column about your own birthday, right?

Awareness key for children's mental health

Life for Sam Martin is much different today than it was two years ago.

When she was 16, Martin fled what she said was an abusive situation at her parents' home, leaving her homeless and struggling with depression, post-traumatic stress disorder and suicide attempts.

Now 18, Martin is finishing high school, has a job and credits support services for helping her get back on her feet.

"I didn't know that help was out there," she said. "I feel like if there was more awareness, then other kids that are in my position when I was 16 could know that there is hope for them."

Heather Heasman, left, and Madelyn McDonald, of Wood's Homes, say the centre's van travels the city three days a week offering everything from food to on-the-spot counselling for young people. KATIE TURNER/METRO

In recognition of National Children's Mental Health Day, Wood's Homes, a multi-service mental-health centre, took up camp on Stephen Avenue on Thursday to help draw attention to the support available.

Heather Heasman, chair of the foundation board, said the centre assists some 20,000 children and families across Canada every year.

"We do have lots of children that have, unfortunately, fallen through the cracks," she said. "We can help at any time with any problem related to children's mental health."

Mobile app. 'I won't say we're overwhelmed, but we're quite busy,' says 311 manager

ROBSON FLETCHER
robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Calgary's new 311 app was downloaded nearly 5,000 times in its first two days, the city says, but users aren't taking full advantage of its photographic capabilities.

"We would like to encourage our citizens that are using the app to attach more pictures," said 311 citizens services manager Terry Pearce.

The city received roughly 450 service requests between the app's launch on Tuesday and noon on Thursday, but only about half included photos, Pearce said. "The photograph is really what we want to use to triage the incident," he said.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi said during the app's launch that its power lies in the ability to integrate photos and geo-location to streamline city crews' responses to problems. "Take a picture of it, it automatically sets the location," he said.

Pearce said 311 staff have also been communicating with citizens whose requests would be better directed to police, parking or other authorities.

Calgarians are still "test-driving" the app, he added, and he expects things will run smoother in the near future.

"Users will become very sophisticated as time progresses," he said. "And it won't take very long."

Promising start

- Between its launch on Tuesday and noon on Thursday, the 311 app was downloaded 4,688 times and made the No. 1 spot on the iTunes store.
- 3,708 downloads were on iOS devices, and 980 downloads were on Android devices.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi introduces the 311 mobile app on Tuesday. Since then it's been downloaded nearly 5,000 times. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO

Cops release few details about teen's death

Calgary police continue to investigate the death of a 15-year-old boy in the city's northwest.

Police were called to a home on Citadel Drive N.W. on Tuesday. The medical examiner conducted an autopsy on the body on Wednesday but said on Thursday that, because further analysis is needed, the cause and nature of the death wouldn't be released.

Because the death is still undetermined, the CPS Homicide Unit is still involved in the investigation.

Three sent to hospital

Suspect sought in S.E. stabbing

Police continue to search for a suspect after a Thursday-morning fight that injured three men.

Duty Insp. Terry Larson said officers were called to a disturbance on Lynnview Road S.E. just before 1 a.m. and found the men suffering from stab wounds. Two had life-threatening injuries, but all three are recovering, Larson said. The men are believed to be in their mid-twenties. "Alcohol appeared to be involved," he said.

He said one man was released from hospital and police took him in for questioning. As of Thursday afternoon, no suspects had been identified.

Teacher deal deadline Monday

Education. Minister says it's premature to speculate on what will happen if not all school boards and union locals ratify the deal

ANNALISE KLINGBEIL
Metro in Edmonton

The minister of education has spent this week talking to school board chairs, as the deadline for a tentative teacher deal looms.

While Jeff Johnson anticipates a full day of travel on Monday to meet with those that have not supported the deal, he would not speculate on what will happen if not all school boards and union locals ratify the deal by the deadline set at 3 p.m. that day.

"We'll see what the scorecard looks like Monday afternoon," Johnson said Thursday.

The tentative deal was struck between the province and the Alberta Teachers' Association in March and must be ratified by all school boards and union locals to be approved.

"The way the framework is, it's an all or nothing, so we'll have to make those decisions on Monday," Johnson said.

By Thursday, 57 bargaining units had supported the deal, one (St. Albert Public Teachers Local 73) had rejected it and four had not yet decided. Fifty-one school boards have endorsed the agreement.

While mum on details, Carol Henderson, president of the Alberta Teachers' Association, said the association was aware going in that some may not support the deal.

"We have some options.... We will be making a decision and it will not fail," she said.

Stella McCartney. Local stylist to work with daughter of former Beatle

Success comes from hard work and that's something one local hairstylist knows well.

Suzanne Thompson of Calgary's Chrome Hair Design was one of the four people handpicked by Antoinette Beenders to join her official North American team and will be heading to Tokyo on May 17 to work with Stella McCartney, daughter of ex-Beatle Paul McCartney.

"I've been a huge fan of the Beatles since I was a kid," Thompson said. "I just really respect her fashion and the way she goes about it."

Having already worked with top models during fashion week in New York and Paris, and big-name clients such as Tommy Hilfiger and Diesel, Thompson said working with McCartney is by far the biggest milestone in her career. "I'm ridiculously excited," she said.

Despite all of the success, Thompson still feels humble about the whole experience.

"I've never be really one to talk about myself. I just enjoy it, it keeps me up-to-date, and it's allowed me to do what I do now." DEREK QUAN/FOR METRO

New arena. Edmonton convinces regional partners to file funding application

Edmonton moved a small step closer to filling the funding gap for the downtown arena, but the province was non-committal on whether a new grant program could be used to fund the project.

The city asked for and received the support of the Capital Region Board to apply for $25 million in funding spread over three years. The board voted 17-7 to support the application, which is the narrowest possible margin because the board's voting model requires motions to have a two-thirds majority.

Following the vote, Mayor Stephen Mandel said it was a good step forward, but by no means a solution to the project funding problems.

"It's a letter of support for an application we are making under this program," he said. "This doesn't guarantee us anything other than the support of the region." METRO

Diving coach arrested on sex-related charges

Police in Edmonton have laid sex-related charges against a diving coach who trained Commonwealth Games and Olympic athletes.

Trevor Palmatier, who is 43, is accused of two counts of sexual exploitation and of procuring.

Police say he was arrested Wednesday on warrants issued by the Saanich Police Department in British Columbia.

Saanich police allege that Palmatier developed close personal relationships with his athletes while in his position as a diving coach.

They say a teenage male came forward with information that led to the charges. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lawmakers and White House meet to address sexual assault in military

A worsening epidemic. Multiple scandals prompt calls to strengthen existing laws, enact new legislation

Senior White House officials met privately Thursday with a bipartisan group of lawmakers as growing outrage over the armed forces' handling of sexual assaults injected new energy into efforts to rewrite decades-old military laws.

Senior aides to President Barack Obama met Thursday morning with 16 Republicans and Democrats from the House of Representatives and Senate — 14 female lawmakers and two men. Obama has said he has no tolerance for the problem and that the Pentagon must address it head-on.

Ending the silence

Despite various oversight and assistance programs, the Pentagon's troubling new numbers estimate that up to 26,000 military members may have been sexually assaulted last year, according to results of a survey. Of those, fewer than 3,400 reported the incident, and nearly 800 of them sought help but declined to file complaints against their alleged attackers.

In a massive report released Tuesday, the Pentagon outlined how sexual assaults across the military are a worsening epidemic. The report emerged against a backdrop of scandals, including an ongoing investigation into more than 30 air force instructors for assaults on trainees at a Texas base. And just days ago, the air force's head of sexual assault prevention was arrested on charges of groping a woman in a Virginia parking lot.

In addition, lawmakers have decried an air force officer's overturning a jury's guilty verdict in a sexual assault case, which is allowed under military law.

Several of the lawmakers at Thursday's meeting have been at the forefront of the issue of sexual assault in the uniformed services and have introduced legislation in Congress that is suddenly moving quickly.

"We must strengthen existing laws and policies so that perpetrators face justice and victims can come forward without fear of retribution and with confidence that they will receive the support, care and justice they deserve," Republican Sen. Kelly Ayotte said in a statement.

Teen charged after bloody axe attack

A 15-year-old Prospect Bay, N.S., girl has been charged with attempted murder related to a bloody assault on an older woman.

Police say the teen was arrested after Wednesday night's attack on a 52-year-old woman at the home on Prospect Bay Road where they both live.

"For such a young (person) to be involved in such a violent crime is a serious matter that she will have to answer to," said Cpl. Scott MacRae of the RCMP.

Police said the victim was rushed to hospital after 9 p.m. Wednesday, but she recovered and was released Thursday afternoon.

"When we arrived it was quite a scene," said MacRae. "There was a lot of blood due to (the victim) being attacked with an axe several times."

MacRae said two 15-year-old girls were arrested in a car on Mumford Road about an hour after the attack.

Both girls were expected in youth court on Friday.

The truck was headed northbound shortly after 6 a.m. when it flipped over on a ramp to Route 22-322 westbound, near the I-81 bridge. Police said the driver, a 52-year-old from Dover, Pa., was treated at a hospital for minor injuries.

Atrocities. Top Islamic party member sentenced to death, triggering fears of another wave of deadly violence

A Bangladesh tribunal convicted a top Islamic party politician Thursday of atrocities stemming from the nation's 1971 independence war and sentenced him to death, triggering fears of another wave of deadly street violence between supporters and security forces.

The verdict against Muhammad Kamaruzzaman was the fourth verdict in Bangladesh's war crimes tribunals since January. Dozens of people have been killed in the riots that followed the earlier cases.

There were clashes in at least two cities Thursday, but no immediate reports of injuries. In northwestern Rajshahi, police fired tear gas to disperse dozens of supporters of Kamaruzzaman who tried to block roads and attack vehicles, private NTV television station reported. Protesters smashed several vehicles in northeastern Sylhet city, local police official Rezaul Karim said.

Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina has called the trials a long-overdue effort at obtaining justice against war criminals four decades after Bangladesh split from Pakistan. Critics accuse Hasina of using the tribunals to decimate the country's opposition parties ahead of elections scheduled for next year.

Kamaruzzaman, 61, was convicted in a packed courtroom of five counts of mass killings, rape, torture and kidnapping, Attorney General Mahbubey Alam said.

Death toll from factory collapse passes 1,000

The death toll from a garment factory building that collapsed more than two weeks ago outside the Bangladeshi capital soared past 1,000 on Friday.

Officials said 1,021 bodies have been recovered from the rubble of the fallen factory building as of Friday morning. There was no sign of where the toll might finally settle as more bodies were being found, but it is already the world's deadliest garment industry disaster.

Australia. Search on for couple believed to have fallen from cruise ship

Authorities were conducting an air and marine search Thursday off Australia's east coast for two cruise passengers who were believed to have fallen overboard.

The couple, Australian citizens from New South Wales state, were discovered missing Thursday morning after the Carnival Spirit docked at Sydney's Circular Quay, at the end of a 10-day journey, said New South Wales Police Superintendent Mark Hutchings.

He said surveillance camera footage showed that the couple — a 30-year-old man and a 26-year-old woman whose names have not been released — fell from the ship's mid deck Wednesday night, when the ship was about 120 kilometres off the coast of Forster, a city 300 kilometres north of Sydney.

"This is a tragic event at the moment, but we're holding out hope we might be able to find these people alive," Hutchings said. Investigators were having the video enhanced in a bid to determine whether the couple had jumped or had fallen, Hutchings said.

Memorial. Cemetery denies request from rapper's family to inscribe headstone with profanity-laced lyrics

Commissioners at a Massachusetts cemetery have said no to profanity on headstones.

Sonny Santiago, 23, was a rapper who died in a car crash in February. Commissioners at Pine Grove Cemetery in Lynn this week unanimously rejected his family's request to inscribe his gravestone with a song verse that included profanity.

The commission became aware of the language when the company inscribing the three-foot-tall memorial submitted drawings to commissioners.

Pine Grove Cemetery regulations posted online state that "the cemetery office must approve all inscription work on monuments."

"We've never had a problem like this before," commission chairman Arthur Dulong told The Daily Item of Lynn.

City officials contacted the family about the inscription and they agreed to have the gravestone inscribed with a different, profanity-free verse. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More problems

The commission's dispute with Santiago's family is not over. The family added a three-by-eight-foot decoration made from mulch and rocks on his gravesite shaped like the number "1." Uno was his performance name. The family has been asked to remove the decoration because it does not conform to cemetery rules. "It's not fair," said Santiago's mother, Ana DeJesus.

War on drugs. Brazil introduces new rehab funding for crack users

Brazil's most populous and wealthiest state expanded its attack on crack cocaine abuse on Thursday by unveiling a program that will provide about $650 a month in subsidies for the rehabilitation of addicts at private treatment centres.

In announcing the program, Sao Paulo State Governor Geraldo Alckmin said the money will be earmarked monthly for each crack user aged 18 or more who voluntarily enrols in a rehabilitation program that is expected to get underway in two months, in 11 cities.

The state will give the money to accredited rehabilitation centres when clients present a Begin Again card they receive after enrolling in a program. The cards are valid for six months, the time considered necessary for rehabilitation.

Alckmin said each of the 11 cities in the program will decide the criteria that determine if drug users are eligible. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Brazil is guaranteeing homosexual couples' right to access assisted fertilization.

The wording of the an earlier decree governing who has the right to use such techniques was vague, and some courts had blocked gay couples from using in vitro fertilization and other assisted fertilization methods in the past.

The new decree stipulates that such techniques must be permitted for both gay couples and single people. It appears in the government's official gazette on Thursday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy-metal singer charged with plotting to kill estranged wife

The lead singer of heavy-metal band As I Lay Dying, who is charged with plotting to kill his estranged wife, had recently become obsessed with body-building and had started acting dangerously distracted around his children, his wife said in divorce papers.

Tim Lambesis was charged late Wednesday with one felony count of solicitation of murder, a San Diego County district attorney spokesperson said.

Lambesis' estranged wife, Meggan Lambesis, said in the court papers that her husband had fallen asleep while caring for the couple's three children near a pool and had begun spending endless hours at a gym. He had also begun to spend thousands of dollars on tattoos, she said in the papers filed last fall.

Police say her husband tried to hire a hitman to kill her, but the person he approached was actually an undercover detective taking part in a sting operation set up following a tip to law enforcement last week.

Third man arrested in alleged VIA terror plot

Recruiter? Authorities say Tunisian 'radicalized' a Montreal man who planned to help blow up a cross-border train

A former Canadian resident charged with terrorism offences in the U.S. allegedly radicalized a Montreal man accused of plotting to attack a VIA Rail train, U.S. authorities said Thursday.

Tunisian Ahmed Abassi was charged with fraudulently applying for a visa in order to remain in the U.S. to facilitate an "act of international terrorism."

Two Canadian residents — Raed Jaser of Toronto and Chiheb Esseghaier of Montreal — face terrorism-related charges.

Details of Abassi's arrest and charges were included in a release on Thursday. According to the release, Abassi met with Esseghaier in New York City.

"Esseghaier, who was recently arrested in Canada and is currently incarcerated there on terrorism charges, was previously radicalized by Abassi," the release said.

Children of victims launch civil suits

The children of four missing women whose remains were found on serial killer Robert Pickton's farm have launched legal action looking for compensation.

The daughters and sons of Dianne Rock, Sarah de Vries, Cynthia Feliks and Yvonne Boen have filed separate lawsuits in B.C. Supreme Court, targeting the provincial government, the City of Vancouver, Robert Pickton and his brother Dave and their sister Linda.

The statements of claim allege numerous failures on the part of Vancouver police, RCMP and Crown prosecutors, including that police didn't warn women in the Downtown Eastside that a serial killer may have been targeting women in the area.

The lawsuits also complain about the way the police informed the women's families about the Pickton connection.

Gangsterism and chaos. Did Laval mayor take an offer he couldn't refuse?

A corruption-related storm ripped through the Montreal area Thursday, devastating once-sturdy political institutions inside and outside the city.

The party that won Montreal's last municipal election was dissolved. And in the big suburb next door, the mayor who dominated the last six elections was slapped with gangsterism charges.

It all occurred in just over an hour.

The succession of events underscored how the political order in Montreal has been overturned during a corruption inquiry, which is just now shifting its focus toward provincial politics.

The last-standing rump of the Union Montreal party, which has won every election in the newly merged post-2001 mega-city, announced it had given up trying to rehabilitate itself and would disband.

A few kilometres north in suburban Laval, the ex-mayor was among 37 people facing charges. For much of his political life, Gilles Vaillancourt was known as "The Monarch."

Experimental Lakes research given new life

Fed deal. Show will go on at Canadian science hub that had funding slashed by Tories

Forty-four years of continuous freshwater research at the world-renowned Experimental Lakes Area in northwestern Ontario will not be interrupted this summer after all.

The federal government has agreed to permit continuing data collection this season as it wraps up negotiations with a Winnipeg-based non-governmental research institute to take over management of the remote 58-lake facility.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty killed the $2-million annual stipend for the ELA in last year's Conservative budget, and even fully funded researchers were being told as recently as last month that no work would be allowed to take place there this year.

The facility — not well known outside scientific circles — had become a political embarrassment for the government, a lightning rod for critics who say the spendthrift Conservatives are hacking away at environmental science while spending huge amounts on advertising and communications.

Fisheries Minister Keith Ashfield announced Thursday he's signed a memorandum of understanding with the International Institute for Sustainable Development, "an internationally renowned public policy research institute."

Ontario Premier Kathleen Wynne has already said the province will help with operating costs, the province of Manitoba is also part of negotiations and others are being sought.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Why the ELA matters

- Founded in 1968 under the long-defunct Fisheries Research Board of Canada, the ELA is credited with critical work on mercury pollution, acid rain, climate change, phosphate pollutants, algae blooms and more.
- New research on silver nanoparticles, commonly used in clothing, was interrupted this spring by the 2012 federal funding cut.

Vietnamese take to sea again for a better life

Decades later. This year alone, 460 Vietnamese men, women and children have arrived on Australian shores

Nearly 40 years after hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese fled the country's Communist regime by boat, a growing number are taking to the water again.

This year alone, 460 Vietnamese men, women and children have arrived on Australian shores — more than in the last five years combined. The unexpected spike is drawing fresh scrutiny of Hanoi's deteriorating human rights record, though Vietnam's flagging economy may also explain why migrants have been making the risky journey.

The latest boat carrying Vietnamese cruised into Australia's Christmas Island one morning last month, according to witnesses on the shore. The hull number showed it was a fishing vessel registered in Kien Giang, a southern Vietnamese province more than 2,300 kilometres from Christmas Island, which is much closer to Indonesia than it is to the Australian mainland.

Many Vietnamese who have reached Australia have been held incommunicado. The government doesn't release details about their religion and place of origin within Vietnam, both of which might hint at why they are seeking asylum.

Truong Chi Liem, 23, reached via telephone from the Villawood Immigration Detention Center on the outskirts of Sydney, would not reveal details of his case but said, "I'd rather die here than be forced back to Vietnam."

Magic mushrooms give some depression sufferers high hopes

Potential. Research shows that their active ingredient dampens part of the brain that is overactive in depressed people

KIERON MONKS
Metro World News

Desperate for a fix, David Nutt considered buying magic mushrooms from the street. Restrictions on the drug were making it impossible to conduct clinical trials, and Nutt had no way to secure the mushrooms that are widely available from illegal dealers.

"Fortunately the publicity helped, we are optimistic about the licence and supply now," Nutt, head of neuropsychopharmacology at Imperial College London in the U.K. told Metro.

No stranger to controversy — Nutt was fired as government adviser for claiming ecstasy is as safe as horse riding — he is set to push the boundaries with the first trial of magic mushrooms to treat depression.

Research has shown that psilocybin, the active ingredient in mushrooms, dampens the brain's anterior cingulate cortex, which is overactive in depression sufferers. Trials will target the most severe cases. "The hypothesis is lasting benefits for people who have not responded to interventions," says Nutt. If the treatment seems radical, the professor argues it is proportionate. "Depression is the largest cause of disability in Europe, and only two-thirds of people get well. The rest are out of work and can't cope — we have to try everything."

But despite a rigorous attachment to evidence, Nutt admits he is fighting a crusade and wants to "tap into a reservoir" of hard drugs in clinical practice. "It's a campaign for the liberation of science — drug laws have censored research in this field for 60 years. I think it's the worst censorship since the Catholic Church stopped Galileo using his telescope."

Psilocybin and other mind-altering drugs are becoming popular solutions to a broad spectrum of mental health issues. A 2012 study found that ecstasy chemical MDMA had a lasting impact on post-traumatic stress disorder. Norwegian academics recently found that LSD improved misuse rates in 59 per cent of alcoholics.

"LSD seems to help people see their problems in a different light, to give new insights into their problems ... and to make a strong resolution to discontinue their drinking," said psychologist Pål Johansen.

A treatment 'prospector'

"I'm not saying we will revolutionize depression treatment, but there is a group for whom it will be useful."

A grave problem. Final, secret resting grounds for Boston bombing suspect finally found

Boston Marathon bombing suspect Tamerlan Tsarnaev has been buried in an undisclosed location outside the city of Worcester, police said Thursday after a frustrating weeklong search for a community willing to take the body.

"As a result of our public appeal for help, a courageous and compassionate individual came forward to provide the assistance needed to properly bury the deceased," Worcester police said in a statement.

Sgt. Kerry Hazelhurst said the body was no longer in Worcester and is now entombed. Police did not specify where the body was taken.

Alleged Cleveland rapist, kidnapper held on $8M bail

Ariel Castro appears in Cleveland municipal court Thursday. Castro was charged with four counts of kidnapping and three counts of rape.

Seven charges. Women gave no indication other brothers were involved: Police chief

The man accused of raping and kidnapping three women, who were missing for about a decade before being found alive at his home, was ordered held Thursday on $8 million bail.

Ariel Castro looked down at the ground for almost the entire arraignment hearing. He didn't speak.

The women found alive after a decade in captivity endured lonely, dark lives inside a dingy home where they were raped and allowed outside only a handful of times in disguises while walking to a garage steps away, investigators say. One of their young daughters was also freed from the house.

The 52-year-old former school bus driver has emerged as the lone suspect.

Assistant county prosecutor Brian Murphy said the women were beaten repeatedly and sexually assaulted. He said Castro used the women "in whatever self-gratifying, self-serving way he saw fit."

Daughter's tearful apology

Castro's daughter, Arlene Castro, appeared on Good Morning America on Thursday. She tearfully described being embarrassed and devastated upon learning of her father's suspected role in her good friend Gina DeJesus' kidnapping.

- Arlene was walking home from school with DeJesus in April 2004 just before she disappeared. "I would like to say I'm absolutely so, so sorry," she said. "I really want to see you Gina and I want you to meet my kids. I'm so sorry about everything."

Sen. Mike Duffy leaves a meeting of the Senate's internal economy committee on Thursday. SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sen. Mike Duffy and others still under pressure after audit

Senate of Canada.
Liberal senate leader wants to call in the cops to investigate housing claims by Duffy, Brazeau & Harb

An independent audit into dubious housing allowance claims by three senators did little Thursday to silence allegations of improper spending and cover-up hanging over Canada's much-maligned upper chamber.

Liberal Senate leader James Cowan said he wanted the committee looking into the controversy to ask police to investigate the housing claims by Conservative Sen. Mike Duffy, former Conservative Sen. Patrick Brazeau and Liberal Mac Harb.

"Personally, I think that's the appropriate thing to do," Cowan said. Liberals and New Democrats in the House of Commons also clamoured for a police investigation even as Prime Minister Stephen Harper effectively declared the matter closed — satisfied, evidently, with the audit's conclusions that the rules governing housing claims should be clarified and the money repaid.

In a letter, Duffy said: "I discovered that through a clerical error, per diems were inadvertently charged for several days when I was not in the National Capital Region."

Auditors found he collected more than $1,000 in living allowance while on vacation. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Where's home?

The furor has also raised questions about whether Duffy and Sen. Pamela Wallin are entitled to sit in the Senate at all. A senator is required to reside in the province they were appointed to represent.

- Sen. Pamela Wallin's travel expenses show she spends little time in her Saskatchewan home. An audit found Duffy spent just 30 per cent of the days reviewed in his P.E.I. home.
- A separate audit into Conservative Senator Pamela Wallin's travel expenses is continuing.

3D printers will help mould and shape things to come

The future is now. London, Ont., museum replicating old exhibits with new technology, showing potential real-world applications

KEVIN HURREN
For Metro in London

Steve Mavers, education curator at Museum London in London, Ont., holds a tiny tea kettle created on a 3D printer for the museum's London Works: Labouring in the Forest City exhibit. ANGELA MULLINS/METRO IN LONDON

These days, going to a museum in London, Ont. can feel like entering a whole new dimension.

Museum London has gone 3D — turning to the latest craze in printing to recreate historical artifacts.

Right now, the work's being doing on, quite literally, a miniature scale.

Select objects in the museum's London Works: Labouring in the Forest City exhibit have been replicated on a 3D printer and turned into miniatures of the real exhibit pieces.

When school groups come for tours, they're able to touch the pieces.

"It's a way to engage with the students that come to visit so they can actually handle these 3D replicas. Whereas, they couldn't handle something that was behind glass," said Steve Mavers, the museum's education curator.

While Museum London has only started testing the waters, others have already taken the 3D printing plunge.

The Smithsonian, for example, made at least one full-size rendition of its Thomas Jefferson bust, allowing other museums to borrow the work for displays, Mavers said.

The possibilities — ranging from completely recreating artifacts once considered lost to repairing those that have been damaged — are endless, the curator said.

Devon Elliott, a Western University PhD candidate in history, is well aware of the potential 3D printing has on the future.

"Historians have often worked under conditions of scarcity, but digital technologies are making things more accessible," he said.

Need to know

How it works:

- Blueprint. A digital image of the object being recreated is sent to the 3D printer
- Printing process. Then, layer after layer of small plastic threads are laid down.

One-child China. Director alleged to have 7 kids

Authorities are investigating whether one of China's top film directors fathered seven children in violation of the country's strict family-planning laws, state media and a local official said Thursday.

Reports circulated online this week that Zhang Yimou, director of The Flowers of War starring Christian Bale and also known as the architect of the opening ceremony for the Beijing Olympics, has seven children from his two marriages and from relationships with two other women.

"We are trying to confirm the online rumours," said a woman at the general office of Wuxi city's family planning committee, a department under the municipal government. The woman, who declined to identify herself — as is common amongst Chinese officials — said she couldn't reveal any other information until authorities had finished investigating.

Zhang, 61, reportedly could face a fine of up to 160 million yuan ($26 million), said the People's Daily newspaper, the Communist Party mouthpiece. People caught breaking China's family planning policy must pay a "social compensation fee" based on their annual income.

Users of China's lively social media lined up to criticize Zhang and drew distinctions between how the elite and ordinary people are treated.

"However many children a person has is their basic right, but in a twisted society, basic rights have become a privilege," Beijing resident Liu Weiling, who works for a media company, wrote on Sina Weibo.

Prince Harry. In his first American visit since his Las Vegas shenanigans last year, the royal spare had women shrieking in Washington

Britain's Prince Harry opened a U.S. visit devoted to the wounded victims of war at the side of one of America's most storied wounded warriors, Sen. John McCain, at an exhibition about landmines Thursday.

For the prince, the tour in the halls of Congress was a world away from the Afghanistan warzone where he recently served for 20 weeks in an attack helicopter. It was just as far removed from his hijinks in a Las Vegas hotel room last year, when fuzzy photos got out of a naked Harry playing strip billiards.

With a shrieking gaggle of young women straining to see him behind rope lines set back from the exhibition, the prince quizzed officials of HALO Trust, a charity that focuses on mine clearance and had staged the display of photos, maps and mine-detection equipment. The devastation caused by landmines was a cause taken up by the prince's late mother, Princess Diana, and Harry has carried on that interest as well as his own charitable work for wounded veterans.

McCain, who was shot down over North Vietnam and tortured as a captive, said he cracked to the prince that "he was probably a much better pilot than I was."

As for the prince's reputation for cutting loose on occasion, McCain joked that the dinner at the buttoned-up British Embassy later was sure to be a "wild and raucous affair."

On Friday, the prince visits Arlington National Cemetery and Walter Reed National Military Medical Center before flying to Colorado for the 2013 Warrior Games in Colorado Springs. More than 200 wounded servicemen and women from the U.S. and Britain will participate.

Harry will also visit parts of New Jersey afflicted by Superstorm Sandy and stop for events in New York City before capping his visit by playing in the Sentebale Polo Cup match in Greenwich, Conn., on Wednesday.

Pre-Approval Notice

IF YOU PURCHASED NEW BALANCE TONING SHOES YOUR RIGHTS MAY BE AFFECTED BY A PROPOSED CLASS ACTION SETTLEMENT

A proposed class action settlement has been reached involving New Balance Toning Shoes.

WHO IS INCLUDED?

You may be a Class Member if you purchased in Canada the New Balance Toning Shoes listed below from January 1, 2010 until May 30, 2013.

TONING SHOES:

Rock&Tone, TrueBalance, Aravon Ria, Aravon Riley and Aravon Quinn

WHAT IS THIS CASE ABOUT?

The lawsuit claims that New Balance made certain misrepresentations regarding the benefits of wearing its Toning Shoes in its marketing and sales. New Balance denies it did anything wrong. The Court did not decide which side was right. Instead, the parties have decided to settle.

WHAT DOES THIS SETTLEMENT PROVIDE?

A maximum Settlement Cap of not more than $155,000 is intended to pay claims to eligible Class Members and the costs of the settlement notice. New Balance is also agreeing to refrain from certain practices and to separately pay attorneys' fees, an award to the Representative Plaintiff and the costs of settlement administration. Full details about the Settlement are on the website www.clg.org.

WHAT TYPE OF COMPENSATION CAN YOU RECEIVE?

New Balance will provide to each individual Class Member that qualifies for Compensation the following:

- For a single pair of Toning Shoes: an amount of $100, without the necessity of proof of purchase.
- For two or more pairs of Toning Shoes: a maximum amount of $200, with proof of purchase required for at least one of the pairs of Toning Shoes.

For each Claimant who submits a valid Claim, New Balance shall provide payment as described above, so long as providing such Compensation does not exceed the Settlement Cap. If providing each Claimant with such Compensation will exceed the Settlement Cap, then in such circumstances each Claimant's Compensation shall be reduced on a pro rata basis.

HOW DO YOU ASK FOR A PAYMENT?

To get money, eligible Class Members must submit a claim form by mail postmarked no later than November 14, 2013. Payments could be up to $100 for each pair of Toning Shoes purchased, up to a maximum of $200 for multiple pairs of Toning Shoes, but will vary depending upon the number of Claims submitted by all Class Members and the costs of settlement notice, as specified more fully in the Settlement Agreement.

WHAT ARE YOUR OPTIONS?

If you are a Class Member, you may (1) do nothing; (2) exclude yourself; (3) send in a Claim Form; and/or (4) object to the settlement. If you don't want to be bound by the settlement, you must exclude yourself. However, if you exclude yourself, you can't get a payment, but you can sue New Balance for these claims. If you stay in the Class, you may submit a Claim Form and/or object to the settlement.

WHAT ARE THE IMPORTANT DATES AND DEADLINES?

A motion to approve the Settlement will be heard by the Superior Court of Quebec, 1 Notre Dame Street East, Montréal, Quebec on June 21, 2013 at 8:40 a.m. in room 2.08.

If the proposed Settlement is approved, it will be binding on all Class Members except those who timely and properly opt out.

If you wish to opt out, you must no later than August 19, 2013: i) complete and submit by mail the Opt Out Form; ii) the Opt Out Form is available on Class Counsel's website at www.clg.org. Class Members who want to opt out and who are residents of Quebec must IN ADDITION give notice to the Clerk of the Superior Court of Quebec.

If you wish to object to the proposed settlement, you must send a written notice of objection to Class Counsel and Defence Counsel by no later than June 11, 2013. Your written objection should include: (a) your name, address, e-mail address and telephone number; (b) a brief statement of the reasons for your objection; and (c) whether you plan to attend at the hearing in person or through a lawyer, and if by lawyer, the name, address, e-mail address and telephone number of the lawyer. Class Members who do not oppose the proposed settlement need not appear at the settlement approval hearing or take any other action at this time.

WHEN SHOULD I MAKE A CLAIM?

The Claim Form is available on Class Counsel's website at www.clg.org. A Claim Form must be postmarked no later than November 14, 2013. The Claim form must be sent by mail to: New Balance Settlement Canada c/o Borden Ladner Gervais LLP, attention Marie Gamelin at 1000, de la Gauchetière Street West, Suite 900, Montreal, Quebec, H3B 5H4. There will be no further notice in the newspapers of this Settlement Agreement.

WHEN DO I GET PAID?

Cheques will only begin to be mailed to eligible Class Members for Compensation at the earliest starting on November 26, 2013, assuming that the Settlement is approved and that such judgment has become final.

HOW CAN YOU GET MORE INFORMATION?

A complete copy of the Settlement Agreement and detailed information on how to obtain or file a Claim are available on Class Counsel's website at www.clg.org. To obtain a paper copy or for other information, please call Class Counsel at the numbers below.

WHO REPRESENTS ME?

The Class Counsel, or law firm representing the petitioner, is the following:

Jeff Orenstein
Consumer Law Group Inc.

Drugmakers bring cervical-cancer vaccines to girls in poorest countries

Two multinational drugmakers are teaming up with top global health groups to protect millions of girls in the world's poorest countries from deadly cervical cancer.

Starting with pilot programs in eight Asian and African nations, the ambitious project ultimately is intended to inoculate more than 30 million girls in more than 40 countries by 2020. Most women killed by cervical cancer live in developing countries.

Merck & Co. and GlaxoSmithKline PLC initially will provide 2.4 million doses of their vaccines against cancer-causing human papilloma virus, for a fraction of the cost commanded in Western countries. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Angus Third Pounders finally meats its maker

Big-ticket burger. In U.S., pricey item gets chopped from McDonald's menu

McDonald's is cutting the Angus burger from its U.S. menu. The Oak Brook, Ill.-based company had said earlier this year that it was evaluating whether to continue selling the Angus Third Pounders, which were introduced in 2009 south of the border and are among the chain's priciest items.

The change comes as McDonald's looks to keep up with shifting tastes, even as it underscores the affordability of its food. The website Burger-Business.com, which reported that the burgers were being dropped Thursday, also said that it learned from McDonald's franchisees that the company intends to expand its line of lower-cost Quarter Pounders in coming months, including an option with bacon.

At a time when the restaurant industry is barely growing, McDonald's in the U.S. has been playing up its Dollar Menu in ads to boost sales and steal customers away from competitors. Even if that hurts profit margins, executives say the strategy is critical to gaining market share and ensuring the long-term health of the company. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"When you can get four or five burgers off the Dollar Menu, nobody's going to buy the Angus burger. The Dollar Menu has become a real problem for these chains." Richard Adams, a consultant to McDonald's franchisees

EU trade deal. Agricultural issues stalling talks: Official

A high-ranking European official says only agricultural issues stand in the way of a Canada-European Union trade deal.

Matthias Brinkmann, EU's ambassador to Canada, said Thursday that most other issues are ready or close to ready for signing, but the two sides are still apart on agriculture.

He says the EU is ready to agree to allow 40,000 tons of beef imports, the minimum Canadian producers said would be required. But he says Canada is insisting on more, without giving a specific figure. Brinkmann says in return Europe must be allowed to ship more dairy products to Canada.

Beef and dairy products are said to be among the outstanding issues in the EU-Canada trade deal. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Loonie could hit 90¢ by end of year, new report says

The shine is about the come off the Canadian dollar. TD Bank says in a new forecast the loonie, which has been hovering around parity with the U.S., could hit as low as 90 cents US by the end of the year and early 2014. The loonie has in fact strengthened of late, but the report's authors say that won't last. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Disney snuffs out Day of Dead trademark request

Patently ridiculous. The Mouse backs down after Latino activists mock its attempt to appropriate cultural holiday for film

The interior of Masks y Mas, an Albuquerque, N.M., shop that sells Day of the Dead art year round. Disney has said it will withdraw a Dia de los Muertos trademark request amid uproar on social media from Latino activists, writers and artists. Critics said the request was insensitive, and put thousands of businesses making products linked to the day at risk. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Lalo Alcaraz learned this week that Disney was seeking to trademark Dia de los Muertos, the name of the traditional Day of the Dead celebrated by millions in Mexico and the U.S., the cartoonist had an idea.

The trademark was for an animated movie by Disney and Pixar Animation Studios Inc. that is inspired by the holiday.

The Los Angeles-based humorist created a movie poster that quickly went viral of a skeletal Godzilla-sized Mickey Mouse, with the words: "It's coming to trademark your cultura (culture)."

Anger and ridicule expressed on social media largely by Latinos began circulating. On Tuesday, Disney said it was no longer seeking a Dia de los Muertos trademark request because the film's name will change before its release.

"Disney's trademark filing was intended to protect any potential title for our film and related activities," a company statement said. "It has since been determined that the title of the film will change."

Disney has not said that social media responses were responsible for the withdrawn trademark request. The company did not immediately return a phone call from The Associated Press.

Whatever the reason, the episode showed how quickly reactions to even the smallest corporate move can spread online and lead to calls for boycotts.

"It was not social media that started this. It was Disney that started this," said Tom Garrity, head of the Garrity Group, a public-relations firm that advises companies on social media practices.

"Social media only highlighted the deficiencies in Disney's planning and what people saw as cultural insensitivity." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Epic hack. Cyber-gang stole $45M, U.S. authorities say

A gang of cyber-criminals stole $45 million US in a matter of hours by hacking their way into a database of prepaid debit cards and then draining cash machines around the globe, U.S. federal prosecutors said Thursday.

Brooklyn U.S. Attorney Loretta Lynch called it "a massive 21st-century bank heist" and compared it to the Lufthansa heist in the late 1970s immortalized in the film Goodfellas. Lynch said the fraudsters had moved with astounding speed to loot financial institutions around the world.

Seven people are under arrest in the U.S. in connection with the case, which prosecutors said involved thousands of thefts from ATMs using bogus magnetic swipe cards.

Airline to test ash-detection technology

A volcano in southern Iceland sends up ash in this April 2010 file photo. The eruption kept much of Europe landbound. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

A U.K. budget airline will create an artificial volcanic ash cloud over Europe this summer to test ash-detection technology. The experiment aims to avoid the kind of chaos that paralyzed the continent's air traffic during eruptions in Iceland three years ago.

Thursday's announcement was made by easyJet, which acquired a ton of ash collected in Iceland by scientists in the months after the 2010 eruptions for its test. Air travel was virtually suspended for days in Europe and millions of passengers were left stranded because of fears the ash cloud could disrupt plane engines.

EasyJet PLC said it is working on developing infrared technology fitted to planes that will feed images of an ash cloud to pilots and control operators on the ground.

"We know the (volcanic) activity in Iceland is going to be higher in the next 30, 40 years, and we know there are two volcanoes overdue for eruption. We have got to be more prepared." Ian Davies, easyJet's engineering director

MOST BEAUTIFUL LIST IS COMPLICATED

THE METRO LIST

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

And now from Metro News Central, here's the weekly list of things that make you go … hmmm?

1 Bye-bye beautiful. Hello! Magazine Canada is out with its list of 50 Most Beautiful Canadians and a face only Chad Kroeger could love is on the cover. Besides Avril Lavigne, other beauties include Justin Bieber and the Ryans, Reynolds and Gosling. Of course, none of these people actually live in Canada.

2 Came from away. Some people actually want to live in Canada. Quite a lot of people, actually. According to the latest census results, released this week, 6.8 million Canadian residents came from someplace else.

3 The world is a safer place this week. Cleveland man Ariel Castro was arrested and charged with rape and kidnapping after three women allegedly escaped from his clutches after being held captive for a decade; bad boy and former Italian prime minister Silvio Berlusconi had his four-year sentence for tax evasion upheld; and Hans Lipschis, a guard at Auschwitz from 1941-45, was arrested in Germany this week. Lipschis is 93 years old. Karma is not always instant.

4 The world is not a safer place this week. If you've got a commercial 3D printer, 60 bucks worth of plastic and Wi-Fi, you can print your own arsenal. A University of Texas law student is the first to print up a working .38-calibre handgun. He won't be the last.

5 The world is not a safer place, especially if you're a chicken. Some kid at the College of Art and Design in Calgary slaughtered a chicken in the school cafeteria recently in an act of "performance art." The kid's instructor was fired, presumably, for not being able to tell the difference between art and life. Some of his students are protesting his dismissal. The chicken was not consulted.

6 Speaking of life and art. One of the most popular baby names for girls in 2012 was "Arya," after Arya Stark, a feisty girl character in the fantasy epic Game of Thrones series that has captivated the nerdiverse. Jacob and Sophia were the most popular baby names in 2012. That's AD, not BC, although they were probably pretty hot back then, too.

7 Hockey Night in Canada continues. Sadly, not for the Vancouver Canucks, who were swallowed whole by the San Jose Sharks in four straight games. As this is written, the Montreal Canadiens, the Ottawa Senators and even the Toronto Maple Leafs are still in the quest for Lord Stanley's Cup. Well, at least Vancouver still has Lord Stanley's Park, which this week was declared the No. 2 most beautiful city park in the world by Travel + Leisure magazine. No. 1 is Park Güell, designed by the weird and wonderful Antoni Gaudí, in Barcelona. And isn't this where we came in?

How to Cook Everything

While five bucks may seem pricey for a cooking app, Mark Bittman's How to Cook Everything is a bargain at twice the price. The app not only has the famed New York Times columnist's recipes and how-to pics, but also gives you access to tools like timers and shopping lists.

Dinner Spinner

Wondering what to do with those day-old red peppers and half-can of coconut milk? Input whatever's in your fridge to the free Dinner Spinner app, and voilà! A new meal idea using only what you have on hand.

Ratio

For cooks who hate recipes, Ratio offers guidelines and vague instructions rather than specific directions and ingredients, letting you run wild with creativity in the kitchen.

Big Oven

With a ton of recipes and an interface that's easy to use, Big Oven repeatedly takes home "best cooking/recipe app" awards. Synopsis

Set in the Jazz Age — early 1920s in New York. Nick Carraway (Tobey Maguire) is working as a stockbroker in the city while living in a wealthy suburban enclave. His neighbour is the enigmatic Jay Gatsby (Leonardo Di Caprio), whose ornate mansion plays host to wild weekend parties. Turns out he isn't the aristocrat he claims to be, but the son of dirt-poor farmers who made a fortune as a bootlegger. Nick soon learns his cousin Daisy (Carey Mulligan) was Gatsby's first love. Gatsby and Daisy try to pick up where they left off, but Gatsby proves unable to control the future as adeptly as he created his past.

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Pushing up Daisy

The Great Gatsby. There's plenty of eye candy here, but the real razzle-dazzle is in Carey Mulligan's portrayal of Daisy

Richard: Mark, Baz Luhrmann may be the perfect person to retell Jay Gatsby's Roaring Twenties' story. Equally at home with razzle-dazzle and substance, he captures the tone of the Jazz Age while still allowing the story's deeper resonance to shine through the gloss. It's eye candy, pure and simple, and yet the sense of doom that hangs over the beautiful and damned characters in the story is palpable. Without it this would be just another story about pretty people doing pretty-people things.

Mark: Richard, I approached this movie with some trepidation. Luhrmann is such an overwhelming director, and Fitzgerald's book can be as delicate as chiffon. And for the first half hour, it seemed that the story would be swallowed up in crazed, hallucinogenic fantasias of swirling 3D visuals, not that there's anything wrong with that. It's amazing to watch. But then the movie settled down and captured the beautiful and tragic romance between Gatsby and Daisy, and became profoundly moving. The actors all play their parts well, but I have to say the film belongs to Carey Mulligan. You, Richard?

RC: Absolutely. Daisy is one of Fitzgerald's "bright precious things," a hothouse flower and Mulligan has a face capable of simultaneously showing great happiness and profound sadness, a duality that serves her character well. She effortlessly tosses off shallow lines like, "Your life is adorable," while digging deep to convey Daisy's conflicted nature.

MB: She's exactly as I imagined her when I first read the novel over 40 years ago. I wasn't as sure about DiCaprio at first, but he grew on me. I loved the way Luhrmann took vintage movies of New York in the '20s and colourized them, and then converted them to 3D. There's a scene that takes place on a rooftop patio overlooking Times Square that completely changed the way I imagined Manhattan of the past. But what did you think of the anachronistic score? Did you have an issue with it?

RC: It's probably my least favourite part of the film. I get what Luhrmann was trying to do, but here, unlike Moulin Rouge! it doesn't really work. The Jazz Age Amy Winehouse song is OK, but the Jay-Z tune feels more like an attempt to sell soundtracks than serve the story.

MB: The film is sooooo superior to the 1974 Robert Redford/Mia Farrow version that I will forgive him almost anything. People will come for the visuals, but they'll leave touched by the story. And the clothes.

Daddy's going to hang today

Q&A. Simon Pegg, returning in Star Trek Into Darkness, tells us what his three-year-old daughter thinks he does all day

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
scene@metronews.ca

Simon Pegg in Star Trek Into Darkness. HANDOUT

People who get Star Wars and Star Trek confused — does that infuriate you?
You can't expect everyone to know. It's like when you follow a certain religion and you think everyone celebrates Christmas. They don't!
On to Star Trek Into Darkness. The scene where the spaceship is going all over the place and you and Chris Pine are jumping around and hanging off railings. Is that look on your face genuine terror?
It was more pain. I had to hang from Chris' hand and the harness could only go from my one hip so I was slightly skewed. But no, it was all acting. My three-year-old daughter was on set that day and she assumed that's what my job was. Hanging. She was like, 'Are you going to hang today daddy?'"
Scotty doesn't manage to hold on to the bar and is saved by a much stronger Captain Kirk. Ever been like, man, I really wish I had Chris' body?
You should feel his arms. They're like oak. We'd go to the gym together and it was amazing how the female contingent would start gravitating towards him. Nobody paid me any attention. But no, I was pretty buff at the time!
You guys should have had that chalk you wear in gym class to stop your hands from slipping.
It's not that easy to get on a falling starship…
You and Nick Frost have appeared in Shaun of the Dead, Hot Fuzz and other films together. If you could, what part would you give him in Star Trek?
I'd love him to play Harry Mudd from the original '66 series. But I wouldn't necessarily want him to be in it and I don't think he would want to either. It's not like we have to come as a package.
You don't have a love interest in this movie.
What about my little guy? That's my love interest. The little fellow. We're a unit. We're married.
Your little alien assistant? But you don't even get to kiss it.
I don't kiss it.
But if you could, who would you share a kiss with, Alice Eve or Zoe Saldana?
That's not a choice any man could make. They're both as gorgeous as each other. They come in and everyone is just like WOW.
Your character, Scotty, is Scottish. What's your favourite night cap? And whom would you share it with?
Sparkling water, I don't drink. Probably my wife.

Not a fellow actor? Have you met everyone in Hollywood that you've wanted to meet, as a fan?
I don't think you could ever meet everybody. L.A. is like one of those safari parks where you can walk amongst the animals. You see like, Jeff Goldblum in the supermarket.

Director. Robert Redford

Stars. Robert Redford, Nick Nolte, Stanley Tucci

Robert Redford does triple duty as actor, producer and director on the story of Jim Grant, an ex-member of a radical activist group, in hiding since a robbery resulted in the death of a security guard 30 years ago. When one of his former associates (Susan Sarandon) turns herself in, Grant goes on the lam, pursued by the FBI and a dogged reporter (Shia LaBeouf). An all-star cast (Nick Nolte, Terrence Howard and Julie Christie) fuels this political thriller. Trouble is, there aren't many thrills.

Drama

Still Mine

Director. Michael McGowan

Stars. Genevieve Bujold and James Cromwell

Good movies about and for older audiences are the new black. Still Mine, shot in northern Ontario and New Brunswick, is one of the best. A woman in her 80's falls down the stairs, prompting her husband to build a safer home on their property with his own hands. Local planners and unsupportive children block him at every turn but his will is boundless. The meat of the story is the 61-year bond between the couple, made achingly real by two gifted veteran actors.

Documentary

The Gatekeepers

Stars. Ami Ayalon, Avi Dichter

Director. Dror Moreh

The Gatekeepers examines 45 years of fruitless peacemaking in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict from those directly responsible for its security, the heads of secret agency Shin Bet. The Oscar foreign-language nominee certainly creates a chilling atmosphere with its secret footage and seemingly futile outlook, but ultimately that disparate account leads to what may be missing in most of the movies we see that deal with the subject from a victim's perspective.

Raised from the dead, The Killing springs to life with more whodunits

Television. Not long ago, it looked like the AMC show wouldn't see a third season, but it has found a new lease on life

Joel Kinnaman as Detective Stephen Holder, left, and Mireille Enos as Detective Sarah Linden from The Killing, are re-united for a third season, starting on June 2. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/AMC

Against all odds, The Killing lives.

This AMC whodunit, which solved a tangled murder case — Who killed Rosie Larsen? — during two often gripping, sometimes exasperating seasons, then was cancelled last July for low ratings, will rise from the dead for a welcome third season on June 2.

With this new lease on life, it's preserving one of TV's most delicious acting duos — co-stars Mireille Enos and Joel Kinnaman — while also restoring the faith of Kinnaman, who, in an interview last June, when the future of the series seemed dim, declared he was planning to come back for another season even if he had to "go up there and shoot it myself."

That won't be necessary. Veena Sud, who developed the series and has served as an executive producer, is back in charge, armed with a troubling new case for Stephen Holder, the glib, gangly Seattle homicide detective played so splendidly by Kinnaman.

It's a year later, and a year after homicide detective Sarah Linden, Holder's glowering, pint-sized ex-partner, had left the force. Her nerves and dedication were shattered by the Larsen case, a gruesome drowning murder of a local teen. Linden is now a ferry worker, waving vehicles on and off the ferry at its Vashon Island landing on Puget Sound.

But a serial killer she helped put away a couple of years before is nearing his execution date — even as similarly grisly murders have resumed in Seattle. Holder worries that the wrong man may have been convicted for those earlier crimes.

Initially, Linden scoffs at Holder's efforts at belated justice.

"Not every victim's worth it," she tells him glumly. "You start caring, you'll end up like me, working minimum wage on a ferry."

What she isn't saying (not yet, anyway): She, too, has been tormented by doubts that she collared the right man. How deeply will she be drawn into Holder's frantic make-good probe as time is running out for the convicted culprit?

Meanwhile: How, if at all, is psycho-inmate Tom Seward (played chillingly by Peter Sarsgaard) linked to the rash of new murders of runaway teen girls?

Serial murder isn't the freshest idea for a TV crime drama (just in the past few months The Following and Hannibal have joined the fray).

And by the way, why does The Killing keep killing teenage girls?

Never mind. Judging from the two-hour premiere, The Killing could snag its audience's interest as the mystery unfolds. The premiere plants its share of provocative clues, including a grove of trees that keeps appearing in a child's crayon drawings.

Back again

This year reintroduces the irresistible Holder, a lovably scuzzy ex-narc and recovering addict who radiates a blend of hip-hop-spiked elan and fidgety insolence.

- New/old character. These days, he seems to have it made: less scruffy than when last seen, preparing for the sergeant's exam, with a perfect closure rate for his cases the past year and a cool girlfriend. Aglow with success, is he bucking for a setback? Will this case trigger it? In any case, Kinnaman steals every scene he's in, and, teamed with Enos' prickly, pushy Linden, they still crackle with the chemistry of siblings who bring out the best in each other, whatever the friction between them.

When one man's job is a producer's treasure

Think your small business has what it takes to be the next reality TV star?

Shows featuring small company owners, such as A&E's Duck Dynasty and History's Pawn Stars, are hits, turning nearly unknown small businesses into household names. The shows give them exposure that most could never afford to pay for through advertising or public relations.

So you want your own show? Here's a guide. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sometimes they find you

Production companies are always on the lookout for businesses to film. That's how Pawn Stars came about. Brent Montgomery, the owner of production company Leftfield Pictures, was at a bachelor party in Las Vegas. The limousine he was in passed by a pawn shop and he came up with the idea of a reality show. Montgomery told his staff to find a family-owned pawn shop in Las Vegas. The producers found Rick Harrison of Gold & Silver Pawn Shop, who had already been pitching a reality show idea to other producers. Harrison went with Leftfield Pictures, which sold the show to History.

Cameraman Joe Murgia, right, shoots a close-up of Michael Jordan memorabilia, which was brought in to the Gold & Silver Pawn Shop for an episode of the reality TV series Pawn Stars. JULIE JACOBSON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitch a producer

Many production companies accept pitches for reality shows. If a production company likes the idea, they will be able to bring it to networks. Do an online search for reality TV producers and call to see if they accept pitches. The Idea Factory, which has produced reality shows for Spike and Discovery, accepts pitches on the company's website (tiftv.com).

No failing businesses

Your business must be in good financial standing. No production company wants to start filming a show that centres around a business and then have it close down during filming.

They love families

Family-owned businesses are favoured by producers because it adds "an extra level of story," says Silver. Audiences love seeing people and relationships on TV that they can relate to. Duck Dynasty, which features a family-owned duck-call business, is the most watched documentary-style reality series on TV right now, according to Nielsen.

Tattoo superstar puts ink to paper

Mark my words.
Kat Von D's newest book chronicles the permanent and personal stories behind her work

NATALIE SHURE
Metro World News in NYC

Kat Von D originally came into the spotlight as a cast member of the reality show Miami Ink. GETTY IMAGES

In her third book, Go Big or Go Home, acclaimed tattoo artist and reality star Kat Von D delves deep to tell stories from her own life, and experiences she's shared with clients. Chock-full of photos of tattoos in various stages of completion, and the people who wear them, the book sheds light on the personality, process and profession of one of the tattoo world's brightest stars. We had a few questions for Kat about the art of ink and writing.

What made this book more challenging to write than your other two?
I've always been an open book — no pun intended. It's just a little bit more profound on an emotional level. I want to be as open and honest as possible, even in all my flaws.

What do you love most about tattooing?
There's all this negative stigma surrounding people with tattoos. But I've always thought it's a form of being openly devoted to something, and that's a very rare and great quality to have. You listen to people's stories during an intimate session, and really get to know somebody. I like the idea of being extra connected to a piece because you know how much it's valued by the client.

You're known for your portrait work. How did you get into that?
I think it has to do with the television show. I was doing a lot of them on there and got a reputation for portraits. I love black and grey realism. So I could do a portrait of a paper clip, or a person, and I'd still get excited. It's more about the textures and accuracy.

Goodbye Town, hello platinum single

Dave Haywood. After major successes on previous discs, the country ballad band is claiming to be less forced on Golden

If Lady Antebellum has yet to have another hit to match the spectacular success of its smouldering 2010 ballad Need You Now — a six-times-platinum single that elicited five Grammy Awards, including song and record of the year — it hasn't necessarily been for lack of trying.

To hear Haywood tell it, Lady Antebellum has never been less forced than on their new album, Golden, out today, after Need You Now and 2011's Grammy-winning Own the Night explored sweeping, meticulously orchestrated country ballads.

An escape plan

"Growing up in a small town, sometimes you're kind of stuck in that town. And it's like, man, what am I going to do to get out of here?"

Dave Haywood
Talking about the song Goodbye Town

Lady Antebellum's Dave Haywood, left, Charles Kelley and Hillary Scott, have had to get used to their recent fame. DONN JONES/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is the first Lady Antebellum record that doesn't feature orchestral strings. Why did you make that choice?
We've kind of done some more serious songs on the last few records and always done strings and these big arrangements, big overdubs. And yeah, this one we said, "You know what? Let's get in, play these dang songs, and get out." We really just didn't spend much time adding a bunch of stuff. It's not like we're in there adding like thousands of guitars all over and adding all these extra things. So for us it's all about the songs — finding a great song and finding a great arrangement that fits that song.

Goodbye Town is one of the more emotional songs on the record. What's it about?
Growing up in a small town, sometimes you're kind of stuck in that town. And it's like, man, what am I going to do to get out of here? Whether or not you had a relationship there, places you go remind you of somebody and it's like: I gotta just get the heck out of this place. I think that was something we all reached down and felt like we've experienced. Musically I think it really conveys that. There's this kind of energy throughout the song where it's just, man, I want to get the hell out of here. I think that was one of our favourites to include on the record.

The band's profile has obviously grown a lot over the years. How have you handled that evolution as a group?
It's definitely been a whirlwind. When we started, it all happened organically. We started off just writing together because we loved writing music and we still do to this day. I think a lot of people from the outside looking in say: "Didn't y'all just get put together and you got thrown out there, and didn't the record label pick all these songs?" That's really not the case here at all. We wrote all these songs and we said, let's try writing them for fun, let's just get a crazy name and do this for fun and then we'll go back to our other day jobs. It'll be a side project. Having that mentality from day one, I feel we've always kept and tried to preserve how authentic we began, and we don't want to lose sight of that.

Shakira's hips, post pregnancy, don't lie

The Voice. Colombian singer dishes on her new baby boy, getting back into shape and life with her co-hosts on the set of The Voice

Shakira is back on The Voice.
MATT SAYLES/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Colombian superstar Shakira is learning how to balance her demanding work schedule with being a new mom one day at a time.

"It's part of motherhood, you know," she said of juggling her personal and professional life. "You got to figure it out as you go."

The 36-year-old singer and her soccer star boyfriend Gerard Pique welcomed their first child, Milan Pique Mebarak, on Jan. 22.

"He's great. He's so mellow, but he's very alert too," she said in an interview Wednesday night at House of Blues in West Hollywood, Calif.

Shakira joined fellow The Voice coaches Adam Levine, Blake Shelton and Usher at a red carpet event celebrating the NBC signing competition's top 12 finalists. The Voice host Carson Daly said baby Milan has been a welcome addition to the kid-friendly set, which features regular visits from Daly's young brood.

"With Milan it's a full-blown nursery!" Daly said of Shakira's baby-proofed double-wide trailer. "It's just like Shakira's door opens and It's a Small World starts playing. It's built for Milan. And it's really special and it's cool. We're like a little family."

But according to Shakira, it's not the children who cause the most trouble.

"It's like a kindergarten because these guys are already babies. They're babies!" she joked of her fellow coaches.

When it comes to getting those famous hips back into pre-baby shape, Shakira said she's still working on it.

"I still have a long way to go. I still have a few pounds over to lose," she said. "I look decent." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Goldie Hawn poses with her daughter Kate Hudson, who is a mother of two young boys. GETTY IMAGES

On growing to love being a look-alike

A pretty pair. Goldie Hawn and daughter Kate Hudson chat about their resemblance and relationship in time for Mother's Day

When Kate Hudson first burst onto the scene with the movie Almost Famous, her uncanny resemblance to her mother Goldie Hawn had everybody talking. Hudson didn't see it. But now that she's a mother herself — of two sons, Rider and Bingham — the 34-year-old actress says she treasures the comparison. The mother-daughter pair — Hawn an Oscar winner for Cactus Flower and Hudson a nominee for Almost Famous — has never acted together, but they teamed up for an Almay ad for Mother's Day. In a discussion of motherhood and beauty, both said their glow comes from the inside. Hawn said daily meditation allows her to "connect to spirit."

"Growing up with my mom there was always a sense of fun and it comes down to optimism as well," Hudson said in an interview with The Associated Press. "When you learn how to be optimistic and wake up in the morning and appreciate things and create that in your brain, I think you start to have an enjoyment of life and it shows."

Mom on the mind

"The relationship between mother and daughter is very complex and to be able to talk about the importance of the relationship is something that I look forward to."
Kate Hudson

Now that Kate is an adult and a mom herself, has your relationship gone from parent and child to friends?
Hawn: The truth is that no matter how old we are, as long as our mothers are alive, we want our mother. And it's a very powerful relationship if it's healthy. I miss my mother today. I think the transition does happen but I don't think we ever lose our positioning because we don't want to lose our mother. It's a very, very interesting walk.

Hudson: I think when I had Rider I think that's when you really start to see your parents and connect with them in a different way and you start to see yourself differently as to what you put your parents through, you sort of empathize.

Everyone talks about how you two look alike. Do you see the resemblance?
Hawn: I do.

Hudson: I used to say, "Why do people say that? I look nothing like my mom" but I sometimes walk across a mirror and just get a glance and I see it.

Hawn: We don't really look alike. You take all of our features and they're not alike. What we do have is a way of being that is both very similar. Katie's eyes are different. She looks more like my mother. It's interesting how you can feel it's in the DNA. Katie said it perfectly, she said, "Why does everybody always talk about this and that and us" and she said, "What do you expect? I'm my mother's daughter!"

Hudson: And you know what, I am damn proud of it! It's a very repetitive question that I get a lot in my life and it's something that I feel the rarity of being in that position is I really look at that as a real blessing because the relationship between mother and daughter is very complex and to be able to talk about the importance of the relationship is something that I look forward to. It really informed such a huge part of who I am and the confidence that I have as a woman. It really does come from the closeness that I have with mommy.

Fall Out Boy's Wentz opens up about his drug addiction

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

The 33-year-old bassist for Fall Out Boy (and the ex of one Ashlee Simpson) opens up in a new issue of Rolling Stone about how he sunk into a pill addiction after Fall Out Boy went on hiatus in 2009.

The rocker says he abused Xanax and Klonopin, which are primarily used to treat anxiety. "I was probably physically and mentally addicted," Wentz reveals. "It started from insomnia and anxiety from flying, then it spiralled. He continues, "I felt like a loser already. I'd basically gone from being the guy in Fall Out Boy to being the guy, who, like, hangs out all day. I didn't see how I'd ever come out on the other side."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Things only got worse when Wentz split from Simpson. "I was scared of everything. I thought there were always people listening to me," he says. "Like, I had my house searched for bugs. It was crazy."

Wentz says he is clean now, thanks to his son Bronx, 4, and extensive work with a therapist.

Cocktails made easy

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

It's never too early to get your ice cubes in a row when it comes to summertime cocktails. Though popping the cork on a bottle of wine or twisting-off the cap of a chilled beer may be easier, no drink makes your back deck feel more like the Caribbean than a well-made mixed drink.

While some are complicated, most cocktails are a lot easier to make than you might think. Warm weather favourites like the Bloody Caesar (invented in Canada), the Margarita and the Cosmopolitan are no-brainers.

I love to get my Mojito on this time of year. The Cuban classic, which combines white rum, sugar, lime juice, sparkling water, mint leaves and a bit of muddling, is one of the most refreshing drinks in the mixology handbook.

Bacardi — Cuba's hometown hero — is the standard white rum of choice for a Mojito. I kneel to liquid tradition, but find the new wave of white spiced rums make an even better impression in the glass.

Captain Morgan Silver Spiced Rum ($24.49 to $29.99) mixes white spices, vanilla and a subtle sweetness that works wonders with the Mojito's minty personality. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Scrambled eggs made with velvety brie cheese and savoury smoked salmon is a real treat for a Mother's Day breakfast.

I have given a choice of using natural liquid egg substitutes instead of using three eggs per person, which have excess fat and cholesterol.

1. In large skillet sprayed with vegetable oil, add egg substitute or eggs and milk.

2. On a medium heat continue to scramble just until eggs are almost set. Do not overcook.

3. Serve the scrambled eggs with smoked salmon and brie cheese over top and sprinkle with salt and freshly ground pepper.

Ingredients

Prep time: 5 minutes
Cook time: 5 minutes

- 1 1/2 cup egg substitutes or 6 large eggs
- 1/4 cup lower fat milk
- 1/4 cup diced smoked salmon
- 1 1/2 oz diced brie cheese
- Pinch of salt and pepper

This recipe serves two. MIKE MCCOLL

Why? BeCause

On Saturday, BeCause, a United Way initiative aimed at the next generation of Calgary's philanthropists and leaders, is holding their third annual Why? Race between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Teams of four spend the day running around downtown having fun while learning about the United Way. Last year's scavenger hunt-ish obstacle course involved a giant structure built from cans of food and pieces of Ikea furniture, which were later donated to the community. It starts at Eau Claire Market (200 Barclay Parade SW).

Grand Tasting Hall — 'nuff said

Food and wine lovers can sample a wide selection of local and international wines, spirits, scotches and beer at the Banff Wine and Food Festival Friday. Tickets for the event, which usually sell out, start at $27 and are available online. Sampling coupons are available for purchase at the Grand Tasting Hall of the Fairmont Banff Springs for 50 cents. Make a weekend of it and participate in one of the other wine and food-themed events being held at restaurants and hotels around Banff this weekend.

Energy gets edgy

On Saturday at U of C's University Theatre, TEDx-Calgary presents a day of programming and talking energy with intellectuals, innovators, authors and artists. Speakers are set to discuss everything from the natural laws that govern our universe to the energy that drives a creative mind. The event runs from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tickets are $50, thought there are some discounted tickets available for students and those on restricted income. For more information, check out energy.tedxcalgary.ca.

Help kids to feel the need to read

The CBC's 11th annual springtime book sale takes place this weekend Friday through Sunday at the Calgary Curling Club. The sale is the major fundraiser for Calgary Reads, an early literacy initiative set to change the lives of struggling Grade 1 and 2 readers and their families in Calgary and area schools. There will be thousands of categorized books, and the tables will be restocked throughout the weekend. No four-book limit here; you can purchase as many as you like. Admission is $2 for adults and free for children.

Alien Days are the best kind

MGMT, the American psychedelic rock band formed at Wesleyan University, is making its way to the University of Calgary's MacEwan Ballroom on Friday. The group has topped charts all over the globe. While the release of the duo's latest album has been delayed until June, the band recently released the studio version of their song Alien Days. Check out their spring tour and hope they play some of their highly anticipated new material. Doors open at 7 p.m.

They are superstars, that is what they are

The eighth annual All-Star Weekend in support of Big Brothers Big Sisters features more than 40 professional athletes, CFL all-stars, Olympic speed skaters, skeleton pilots, skiers and snowboarders in a golf tournament, a football kids' camp and an all-star gala. Hosted by Henry Burris, the weekend has raised more than $500,000 and helps kids become a big deal on and off of the field. Friday and Saturday at the Westin Calgary. Tickets cost $200. SLEEK & SEXY

Humidity can be measured two ways — relatively or by dew point — but who needs percentages when frizzy hair is the best dead giveaway?

This season's most delectable hair trends, however, are seemingly without regard for humidity. Styles spotted on the runways rarely swayed from sleek, but how strands were tied ranged from tight knots (at Ralph Lauren and Givenchy) to simple braids (at Jason Wu and Marchesa) and low-slung ponytails (at Michael Kors and Jil Sander). The common theme among them was simplicity, with not a complicated up-do in sight. Therefore, replicating this season's knotty trends should be a cinch — it's beating the humidity and fighting off frizz that will take some technique.

Using a wax to build hair's defence against frizz before styling can work. Waxes both seal moisture in and prevent excess water from entering the hair cuticle, which is what ultimately causes strands to puff up and kink, no matter the season.

Hair waxes are also known as pomade, styling crème, paste and whip. The degree of thickness depends on the percentage of other ingredients added versus a base wax, like beeswax. Generally speaking, the finer your hair, the more viscous (watery) your pomade or wax should be. If you have thick, curly hair, a heavier wax would work best to hold your sleek top-knot in place all day. If you have fine, straight hair, pick a product more closely resembling a whip.

YOUR HAIR CARE MENU

APPETIZER, MAIN AND DESSERT FOR YOUR DAMAGED LOCKS

Popular hair care ingredients read like a meal and deliver on nourishment, too. Fixes like argan oil, caffeine, avocado and coconut have stepped up the hair repair game so no damage goes unfed and genuine health gets a fill-up.

By feeding your hair a hefty meal of antioxidizing oils, strengthening proteins, and conditioning butters, you can reinforce strength so the threat of breakage won't spoil your appetite for spending summer days outdoors and lounging around your neighbour's saltwater pool.

Here is a closer look at the menu:

ANTIOXIDANT SALAD (PROTECTION)

Vitamins A, B, C, E and K can be found in numerous hair products. They offer dull and depleted hair protection against oxidative damage (when environmental factors cause your hair to lose protective electrons to free radicals) and bring back plenty of healthy shine. You can find these vitamins by searching product labels for ingredients like apricot oil, pomegranate oil, argan oil, coconut oil, beta carotene, phytochemicals and grapeseed extract. Nourishing to all types of hair.

PROTEIN MAIN (STRENGTH)

Each strand of hair is comprised of three layers of proteins piled atop one another. When the second layer, the cuticle, is damaged, your hair becomes officially dry and damaged.

A protein-rich meal aids in smoothing the proteins into place and building elasticity so strands won't break from brittleness, and makes it easier for them to hold onto moisture.

Protein-rich products range from shampoos to leave-in hair treatments and show up as keratin, collagen, flaxseed and soy-based additives, for example. Fatty oils can weigh fine hair down (therefore best to use overnight) but are generally well absorbed by coarser textures.

CONDITIONING DESSERT (MOISTURE)

Conditioner does for your hair what something sweet after dinner does for our craving — satisfies. Look for shea, jojoba, mango and coconut butters if you prefer natural ingredients to fight frizz, and if your hair can handle the weight, or glycerin and silicone complexes for smoothness and shine on finer textures. All types of hair will mellow out after a cool and creamy conditioner.

50 SHADES OF WHITE

QUICK-FIX TEETH WHITENING KITS ARE EASY TO USE

HEMERA/THINKSTOCK

At-home teeth whitening kits are a fraction of the cost of what you would pay to see your dentist. Products are easy and safe to use so you don't have to give up on your favourite vices.

The effective agent in most whitening products is hydrogen peroxide (H2O2). It is also likely the most popular bathroom cabinet essential (you would recognize the brown bottle with white writing, right?) because it's simply a combination of water and oxygen, and extremely affordable.

Hydrogen peroxide is one of the best germicidal agents for a household full of kids — when you used to fall off your bike and scrape your knee, your mom likely doused the bandage in H202 before sending you back outside, but these days you should consider hydrogen peroxide your ticket to whiter teeth.

Choose a teeth-whitening product with controlled amounts of hydrogen peroxide on the label. Take your pick of kits, toothpaste and mouthwash — they all have the right amount of hydrogen peroxide to whiten your teeth safely at home.

The strongest whitening kits on store shelves have 14 per cent hydrogen peroxide. Whitening mouthwashes are often made effective by a combination of hydrogen peroxide and sodium hexametaphosphate. An alternative to H202 is carbamide peroxide, also found in whitening products, which is slower to oxidize and roughly one-third the strength of hydrogen peroxide. It may be the better option for whitening highly sensitive teeth.

As for maintaining your newly whitened teeth, think more so about how acidic your food is than its inherent colour. Salt and vinegar chips for example, though extremely delicious, are highly acidic and may contribute to the erosion of tooth enamel. Same goes for orange juice, citrus fruit and white wine, which is actually more likely than red wine to stain your teeth because it's more acidic. Also, drink water after your morning espresso to rinse away the lingering crema, and keep a spare toothbrush in your bag for good measure.

PAYING LIP SERVICE

Beyoncé

Among the must-have lip shades this season are bouquets of both crimson red and barely-there nudes so subtle they nearly conceal your mouth. This spring, opposites attract equally.

Flesh tone lips flatter an expressively smoked eye (try this season's vivid palette of violet, indigo blue or emerald green) and also appear appropriately restrained against a bronzed complexion. Jennifer Lawrence is obviously a fan (she wears nudes often and very well) and Beyoncé always manages to make a bare lip look super fierce.

Choosing the right shade of nude is essential since it will set you up for appearing Brigitte Bardot-ish rather than passing on to the next life. Your teeth will look white rather than three shades deeper. Generally, three tones of nude lipsticks exist: Ones with apricot undertones; those with a pink tint; and true, honest beiges. Try the first two and avoid the third since that's how lips can look mistakenly chalky, like you have eaten a powdery doughnut and forgotten to tissue off.

As for red, the hottest swatches are tangerine and glossy (the ones created for Moschino by Tom Pecheux looked like freshly peeled citrus fruit) and crimson and matte. Choosing a red lipstick is truly a personal adventure to embark upon. The shade's vibrancy is so powerful, and red carries so many cultural and emotional connotations that you should try on shade after shade until you find one that makes you feel fiery.

Absolutely skip the lip liner with nude shades (you may look like a mannequin if you don't), but feel free to employ one with deep crimson lipstick. A perfectly precise line can add to the allure of red lips, like the ones created by Pat McGrath at Prada. She applied layer after layer of lipstick, blotting in between, to make sure the finished texture was opaque and deliciously rich. – Rebecca Perrin

NHL playoffs. Goaltending makes the difference in series finale between rivals

Game 5

Senators	Canadiens

One thing the Ottawa Senators and Montreal Canadiens agreed on at the end of their sometimes-bitter playoff series was that it all came down to goaltending.

Craig Anderson's rock-solid play and some shaky moments for Montreal backup Peter Budaj put the Senators through to the second round of the NHL playoffs with a 6-1 romp over the Canadiens on Thursday night.

Ottawa won the best-of-seven Eastern Conference quarter-final 4-1 and will move on to the second round for the first time since 2007, when they reached the Stanley Cup final only to fall to the Anaheim Ducks.

"Finding a way to win two games in this building feels great and so was being able to finish it off on our first chance," Senators captain Daniel Alfredsson said. "Andy made some great saves and we took over more and more as the game went on."

Anderson, who posted heady numbers in the regular season, was just as sharp in the playoffs, holding the usually high-scoring Canadiens to nine goals in five games while his own supposedly low-scoring team piled on 20 against Montreal.

"For our team, Craig Anderson obviously was the MVP of this playoff series," said Ottawa coach Paul MacLean. "He was outstanding in every game.

"He gives us a chance to bend but not break, to recover, get our bearings. And once we do that, we're able to establish our game."

Cory Conacher had two goals while Alfredsson, Zack Smith, Kyle Turris and Erik Condra also scored for Ottawa, who were underdogs as the seventh seed in the East.

Walk it out: Jays' bases-loaded free pass gives Rays win

MLB. Contest featuring reigning Cy Young award winners decided in extra innings

Luke Scott drew a bases-loaded walk with two outs in the 10th inning to give the Tampa Bay Rays a 5-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays on Thursday night.

Scott fell behind 0-2 in the count before taking four straight balls from Brad Lincoln. The Rays loaded the bases on Evan Longoria's double off Aaron Loup (1-3) and two walks.

The game featured a rare matchup of reigning Cy Young Award winners, however David Price and R.A. Dickey were not involved in the decision. It was only the third time since the Cy Young has been awarded in both leagues that reigning winners have faced each other the following season.

Jays starter R.A. Dickey delivers a pitch to the Rays on Thursday.

In the other matchups, Atlanta's Tom Glavine beat the Roger Clemens and the New York Yankees 6-2 on July 15, 1999 and the Mets' Frank Viola defeated the Dodgers' Orel Hershiser 1-0 on Aug. 28, 1989.

Dickey allowed three runs and five hits, walked five and struck out five in six innings for the Blue Jays. He left with a 4-3 lead that Steve Delabar relinquished by giving up a solo homer to the first batter the reliever faced, ex-Blue Jay Yunel Escobar leading off the seventh.

Price worked eight innings for Tampa Bay, yielding four runs (two earned) and seven hits in eight innings.

Scott singled to right field with the potential go-ahead run on second base with two outs in the bottom of the eighth, but Longoria was thrown out at home by Jays outfielder Jose Bautista.

Twins knock Red Sox out of 1st place

The Minnesota Twins are heading home with a three-game winning streak. Doing it against the Boston Red Sox makes it more impressive.

The Red Sox had the best record in the majors after they beat the Twins in the series opener. But after losing 5-3 in Thursday night's finale, they dropped out of first place in the AL East for the first time this season.

"It's important that you kind of get that feeling about grinding things out at the end of a long road trip," Twins manager Ron Gardenhire said. "These guys really stayed focused."

Oswaldo Arcia hit a two-run homer and the Twins capitalized on a costly throwing error by Boston starter John Lackey to beat the Red Sox, who lost for the sixth time in seven games.

Boston won the opening game of the series 6-5 in 11 innings on Monday night.

All four series tied up in Round 2 of playoffs

Underdogs. Four lower-seeded clubs on even footing with four of NBA's top five winningest road teams

Parity has struck the NBA playoffs, where the conference semifinals are all fit to be tied.

The four current series are all knotted at one game apiece — the first time that's happened in the second round of the NBA playoffs since the league went to its current format more than a quarter-century ago. For favourites like Miami, New York, San Antonio and Oklahoma City, home-court advantage has disappeared, and now it's the underdogs who can control their own fates simply by taking care of business on their home floors.

Warriors guard Stephen Curry drives past Tim Duncan of the Spurs during Golden State's Game 2 win on Wednesday night in San Antonio, Texas.
RONALD MARTINEZ/GETTY IMAGES

A wild weekend is ahead, without question.

The Heat, Knicks, Spurs and Thunder are four of the league's top five winningest road teams this season. That probably isn't being received as great news for Chicago, Indiana, Golden State and Memphis, the lower-seeded clubs who will be hosting pivotal Game 3s when NBA playoff action resumes on Friday and Saturday.

"Pretty cool. The NBA's loving it," Heat forward LeBron James said. "When it comes to the playoffs, I always continue to say no matter how many games you win or lose in the regular season, once you get to the playoffs everybody's record is 0-0. So I think it's great. I think it's great for our fans, I think it's great for the competition that every series is tied 1-1."

After a first round with only two sweeps — by Miami and San Antonio, the top seeds in the Eastern and Western Conferences — the tone for the second round was set pretty quickly around the league. Miami lost Game 1 at home to a wounded and weary team from Chicago. San Antonio needed a huge comeback to beat Golden State in Game 1 of their series, then saw the Warriors simply come back and take Game 2.

Ruff not satisfied with Canada's win over Sweden

Mike Smith helped Canada beat Sweden 3-0 on Thursday.
JACQUES BOISSINOT/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada took advantage of overtaxed Sweden for a 3-0 win at the IIHF world championship on Thursday, and felt they should have done more damage.

"We didn't finish some opportunities we'd like to finish that could have put them down early in the first," Canadian coach Lindy Ruff said following the game. "You're thinking, 'Boy, we left a lot on the table.'"

Buffalo Sabres goaltender Jhonas Enroth robbed Canadians on several excellent looks in the first two periods.

It was Canadian Mike Smith's turn for heroics in the third. The Phoenix Coyotes goalie stopped 17 shots in the period en route to a 33-save shutout and his first win of the tournament.

"If not for their goalie, we would have won about seven or eight nothing, I think," forward Matt Duchene said. "We had a great performance in goal by Smitty and we had a lot of chances."

Steven Stamkos of the Tampa Bay Lightning, Philadelphia Flyers defenceman Luke Schenn and Carolina Hurricanes Jordan Staal scored goals in the first two periods for Canada. Matt Read of the Flyers had two assists in front of an announced sellout of 12,500 at the Globe Arena in Stockholm.

Canada (3-0-1) vaulted over Sweden into second spot in the Stockholm pool. Unbeaten Switzerland led with 11 points followed by Canada with 10 and the Swedes with nine. Norway was fourth with six.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
The planets suggest you will find yourself at odds with the accepted way of doing things today. Even if it causes you financial hardship, you will fight on the side of what you believe is right. Good for you.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Today's solar eclipse in your birth sign means you can't put off what needs to be done. What you start over the next 24 hours will pay dividends for the next 24 months!

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You will need to make some difficult decisions today. The important thing is that once you have decided on a certain course of action, you see it through to the end.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
There are so many opportunities in your life right now that you may find it hard to decide what to do first. But decide you must, and quickly. The last thing you need now is to be trapped by indecision.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Today's solar eclipse means a new start in your career or vocation is not just possible but desirable too. If your present position does not satisfy you, now is the time for a change.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Your life will change for the better over the next few days. What matters even more though is that your attitude is changing: You no longer attach so much importance to things of a material nature. Good.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Most things change slowly but occasionally you get the chance to change things quickly and today's eclipse makes this the ideal time to make a quantum leap. Change your outlook and your world.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
If a relationship has been going through a tough time of late then today's eclipse will bring matters to a head. A new start is possible but you both have got to want it.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Cosmic activity in the work and wellbeing area of your chart suggests you are thinking of changing your daily routine, maybe in quite dramatic ways. And why not? Change is good.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You should be having the time of your life right now and if that is not the case, it can only be because you are letting the past hold you back. Today's eclipse urges you to be bold.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Do not, repeat not, interfere in other people's private affairs today — and don't let other people interfere in your private matters either. You may think you know best, and maybe you do, but it won't change a thing.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Life has been a bit predictable of late but as from today things should get a lot more interesting. If you have not yet made any social plans for the next few days then make them now. SALLY BROMPTON

JESUS, THE DELIVERER
"He answered and said, Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God" (Daniel 3:25). Perhaps you are passing through a situation that hurts like fire, be rest assured that Jesus is with you. He will deliver you and bring you out unhurt.
